About Christian Stahl:

Christian Stahl is a German director, author and journalist, based in Berlin. He studied in Bonn and Oxford. Before he founded his communication consultancy STAHLMEDIEN in 2005, he worked for over 10 years as reporter and radio presenter for ARD. Stahls latest book "In den Gangs von Neukölln" was awarded by FAS a book of the year 2014.

In 2004, he developed the fictional documentary "Hundeleben" ("Dog's Life") with punks from Berlin's Alexanderplatz, featuring Otto Sander and Maria Simon. In winter 2007, Stahl produced the no budget short film "The future comes to Srebrenica" with young people in Srebrenica. His first 90 min documentary GANGSTERLÄUFER (ARTE/ZDF das kleine Fernsehspiel) premiered at Max Ophüls Festival 2011 and was shown in cinemas from Paris to Novosibirsk. He was also director of various shortfilms such as "20Zwölf" and "Neue Nähe". His films and books are award winning.
